

TEREX AFRICA MOVES INTO NEW PREMISES

Terex Africa has moved into new purpose-built premises in Kempton Park, north-east of Johannesburg.

Situated at 61 Maple Road, Pomona, the company's 24,000m² precinct includes its national office, Gauteng regional office and warehouse, as well as state-of-the-art workshops designed to deliver operational efficiency.

The move, which took place from April 2008, enables the company's rapidly-growing workforce to operate together under one roof, as employees formerly worked from four different sites in Sebenza, Jet Park and Edenvale, Gauteng.

"Functioning as one unified unit has enabled us to grow and develop our unique corporate culture and values," says marketing officer Tammy Davies, adding that it has gone a long way towards improving internal communication across the company's various divisions.

The complex's modern look and feel will soon be matched with the latest technology, including advanced IT infrastructure and a new call centre that will streamline processes and further improve customer service.

A billboard broadcasting Terex's 'new pozi in eJozi' has been flighted on the R21 Highway to Pretoria, a stone's throw away from its premises.
